An American Story

Like many successful American business stories, Diesel Injection began with a young man who had a vision. Driven by desire, Lloyd A. Bailey founded Diesel Injection Service Company of Louisville KY in April, 1950. His knowledge of the diesel engine, a strong work ethic, sensitivity for service, and sound business ethics provided the formula for success. Ohio Auto Parts in Columbus, Ohio was a small fledgling fuel shop. Lloyd purchased the business in 1968 and changed the name to Columbus Diesel Supply. Lloyd's son Steve Bailey has grown up in the industry. In 1970, Steve graduated from Indiana State University and assumed the position of General Manager. Thirty years later, it is the largest of all branch operations. A new building was built in 1980 and today Columbus Diesel Supply specializes in high performance fuel systems and turbochargers for the professional tractor puller. In 1999, the National Tractor Pullers Association named them Manufacturer of the Year.

Developing the largest branch and active participation in the Association of Diesel Specialists has helped prepare him for the future. Steve served on many ADS committees and in 1990 became the Association's first second generation president. One of Steve's many contributions is the ADS nationwide warranty program. Through this system, customers of all member companies can enjoy accredited, dependable service support at over 400 member facilities throughout North America.

For his leadership, Steve was also awarded the Henry B. Sirotek Memorial Plaque. In 1994 Steve Bailey moved from Columbus, Ohio and returned home to become President and Chief Operating Officer of Diesel Injection Service Company, Inc., the leader of The Integrity Group. While heritage is strong, the lineage is equal to the task.
